

GERMAN FOREIGN POLICY Thanks to german-foreign-policy.com

“More Aggressive 03/19/2018

BERLIN/LONDON/MOSCOW (Own report) – [please see full version from this excellent web site set out in a pdf under Defence.]

NATO is envisaging a new arms buildup against Russia, as NATO Secretary General Jens Stoltenberg announced yesterday in an interview.

Stoltenberg expects that the heads of states and governments of NATO's member countries will "face new decisions" at the NATO summit in July in Brussels to "improve" the "defensive capabilities" and military "preparedness" of the member nations. Officially, this was triggered by the double assassination attempt in Salisbury, Great Britain, which until now has not been solved. Police predict that the investigation may take months.

A former British ambassador explains that employees of Britain's foreign office compare the pressure they are now under for this case, with the pressure in 2003, when the government claimed that Iraq was in possession of weapons of mass destruction. Germany's Federal Intelligence Service (BND) is also introducing new measures against Moscow, whereas the majority of the German population favors rapprochement with Russia. ""

CONCORDANCEOUT.EU CONCLUDES with sorrow that:-

Whilst T May and D Davis are betraying UK Fisheries it is suspected that with KitKatgate [please see concordanceout.eu BREAKING NEWS SECTION] and with PESCO UK-involvement-denials, the PM is planning further betrayals of Brexit.

But notes that:- Lt-General Jonathon Riley (ex-ISAF deputy commander) and ex-military colleagues express deep concerns over the defence component of the Draft Exit Agreement:

"The exit agreement shows that the Cabinet Office does not intend to regain the defence autonomy it gave away on paper in 2017.

As a result of a below-radar deal reached 15 months ago, the UK will now be transitioning via a third country arrangement, that provides a u-bend route for the UK to come back fully under EU authority in the future.

Political commentators in academia and the media are largely yet to grasp the small print of what is really going on. By that time, it will of course be too late."

Lt-Gen Riley is ex-ISAF deputy commander and a former commander of UK forces sent to Bosnia, Sierra Leone and Iraq.

His co-signatories to the statement are:

Maj-Gen Julian Thompson (former commander of landings in the Falklands),
Rear-Admiral Roger Lane-Nott (former Flag Officer Submarines, NATO Commander Submarines Eastern Atlantic), Professor Gwythian Prins

These PM betrayals of the UK after BREXIT are expected to be seen in promises from the PM to the EU, including monetary promises, together with the PM handing over UK sovereignty over UK armed forces.

The PM of course has denied promising to EU control over UK military units that may be available to support the EU army being set up in competition to NATO.

NATO and the EU

The very EU concept of setting up a competitor to NATO is extremely unwelcome in any event. This EU force will be available to be used under the Treaty of Velsen to enforce EU Federal Power against nation state members within the EU as well as being an unwelcome competitive force to NATO

R Wright-Morris/S Blanchard 21 3 2018