

The REALLY GOOD NEWS: - A BESPOKE EEA/EFTA /UK AGREEMENT can resolve ALL ISSUES relating to our transition from the EU via this stepping stone to full free BREXIT from the EU and out into the free world.

The MP's are beginning to realize that the only exit route which will resolve UK-EU issues is to adopt the EEA/EFTA route with UK-EU bespoke changes. [I shall refer to this as the EEA/EFTA/BREXIT.]

The EEA/EFTA/BREXIT solution is different from a “copy Norway Option”.

Real Brexit Issues relate to borders, conformity, certification, inspection, Membership of Standards Organizations and seats on WTO bodies, fishing, sanitary and phytosanitary checks and many more. These are all resolved by a bespoke UK/ EEA/EFTA/BREXIT exit.

There are serious time issues that make it impossible to renegotiate many hundreds of other ancillary matters, like essential sanitary and phytosanitary checks relating to the international movements within the EU of live Racehorses and plants for example.

These solutions to all the BREXIT issues are available but the PM and DD seem to be intent on keeping the UK as a vassal state of the EU not just for two Years after BREXIT but maybe in perpetuity. Who knows? They do not!

ALAS FOR BREXIT. Mr. Simon Jenkins has a little trap for the Brexiteers. I deal with it below.

Mr. S Jenkins says: - “At last, good news on Brexit: Britain is heading for Norway” Simon Jenkins* Says in the pro EU minded Guardian

“Norway here we come. This is the good news on the Brexit front. It will take two years. The voyage will be stormy and the destination messy.” More from Simon Jenkins is set out below between the inverted commas. [The full artful article can be found on the Guardian web site. These are extracts from that article]

The Campaign for an Independent Britain [CIB], Dr. R North in eureferendum.com and FRELXIT agree that the proposed EEA/EFTA/ BREXIT bespoke arrangement would be an excellent stepping stone on an EU exit route and concordanceout concurs.

“However Mr. Jenkins goes on too enthusiastically:- “ But plus-or-minus Norway offers the only sensible way for Britain through the Brexit morass. “

Unfortunately, as a Remainer who appears thereby to support the EU Federal non democratic machine, Mr. Jenkins is revealing that he is plus or minus against Parliamentary Democracy [namely control over the monies and legislation of Government as that is not possible in the unreformable EU], and also thereby that he is against UK sovereignty and UK Common Laws and procedures.

Mr. Jenkins continues: “Labour’s Jeremy Corbyn and Keir Starmer agree. Nick Clegg agrees. Most of the cabinet and the Tories’ Remainers publicly or privately agree. So do those close to the Brussels negotiations. They still seem unable to shake hands on it, but they will soon” says Mr. Jenkins.

In plain English, be prepared for a Parliamentary and Downing Street anti Brexit stitch-up with Clegg and Corbyn, as seen with the Fisheries, the £40 Billion and the corner that Mrs May has put herself in so that she can so stitch up!

The EEA/EFTA/BREXIT stepping stone solution to exit the EU will work because the mechanisms are there subject to bespoke UK changes. I repeat that it is ONLY A STEPPING STONE to freedom and exit from the EU after this much more favourable transition.

EFTA for example accepts about 20% of EU directives, says Nei til EU [No to EU Norway] whilst the transition period leaves the UK fully inside the EU and 100% of all its regulations and directives but unsolved Border issues of every kind. These issues and the role of the ECJ are just kicked down the road by DD and the PM so that they can resolve them later by silently giving in yet again on each and every issue in question.

LAST WEEKS OF MARCH 2018

Mr. Jenkins says: “The week has been full of hopeful signs. On Monday the EU’s Michel Barnier – a secret “Norwegian” – could not conceal his glee at his cobbled-together transition deal, nor could his British counterpart, David Davis.” “The deal was a document of the most brutal realism. For now, the UK remains a non-participating member of the single market, with freedom of movement and right of settlement. Farmers and fishers are “as you were”. Britain can discuss “offshore” trade deals, but not agree them. Hard Brexiteers can go jump off a cliff.”

Concordanceout says that you should read the federalist agenda of the Guardian with care and with a critical eye for the federal intent and devotion to Spinelli and the destruction of the UK as an independent democratic nation state.

Mr. Jenkins again; -“The smart money in Brussels was always on the Norway option. The so-called European Economic Area was a simple “off-the-shelf” basis for a bespoke deal with the UK. The challenge lay not in negotiating it but in overcoming Theresa May’s belief that her fate depended on some 50 backbench leavers and the editors of the Sun and the Daily Mail. She was terrified of them.”

“Even so, the assumption was that, as the March 2019 deadline approached and the impossibility of a “frictionless” hard Brexit became ever clearer, Theresa May would be forced into a series of tactical retreats. The tough Lancaster House and Florence speeches, and Chequers [speech] last month, were dollops of fudge to keep hard Brexiteers on board. But this week’s transition deal would mark a parting of the ways. So it has appeared. The sight of Boris Johnson, Michael Gove and assorted friends shuffling miserably into line, whimpering over dead fish, was heart-warming. So in a sense has been May’s and Johnson’s distraction over Russian poison, hysterically comparing Vladimir Putin to Stalin and Hitler.”

Now you can begin to see the true anti UK as a nation state objectives of Mr. Jenkins. Mr. Jenkins, like Mr. Cable, dislikes the UK as a self-governing independent sovereign nation State. Mr. Jenkins is really not supporting the EFTA route but supporting the vassal state route of the May Transition with the UK place in EU made worse after March 2019, says concordanceout. His plus or minus so indicates to me. Certainly it is not a UK/EEA/EFTA/BREXIT exit route.

Mr. Jenkins. “A detailed analysis of the Norway option in last month’s Economist was unequivocally favourable. Norway in 1994 went through the same referendum debate as Britain, with the same drift towards compromise. The country remained in the European Free Trade Association (Efta). It stayed open to a single European market in goods, capital and labour, but it held aloof from the common fisheries and agriculture policies. Norway also stayed outside the EU customs union, to secure its own trade deals elsewhere. It is hard to see what substantive argument a Brexiteer could have against this.”

“Norway fiercely denies it is a “vassal state”. It is rated by the Economist Intelligence Unit as the “most democratic” in the world. It must abide by EU rules on trade in goods within the EU. But so must EU members, who can be overruled by majority voting. On matters of joint concern, such as energy, Norway is consulted and heard. Its lobbying office next to the Berlaymont building is more effective than any council vote. As for the European court, the Efta court liaises with it and is rarely in conflict.”

“The one argument against the Norway option for Britain is its lying outside the customs union” says this Guardian federalist. The four EFTA countries are outside the hated EU Customs Union says concordanceout. The Customs Union is now and would be a disaster for EFTA as well as the UK.

Concordanceout says: - A CUSTOMS UNION requires all parties to establish identical external tariffs. This is exactly what the UK seeks to avoid on its journey to re-establish free trade with the world. EU Customs Union tariffs make items of food, clothes and footwear, for example, more expensive within the EU. The UK is forbidden to sign individual trade deals with non EU countries until the UK leaves the transit bubble in 2021. Under Mr. Jenkins that prohibition would be lasting forever. He said “The one argument against the Norway option for Britain is that it would lie outside the customs union.”

On the contrary Mr. Jenkins, the facts of international trade support the disadvantages of a Customs Union. The EU customs union is EU protectionist and anti-competitive resulting in inefficiency. It is exactly what Brexit does not seek or need. It is vital to be out of the Customs stifling anti-free trade, anti-competitive and anti-efficiency Union. We should remember that the world’s largest free trade area NAFTA does not have a Customs Union. NAFTA covers three nations of over 444 million people, of whom 33.3 m live in Canada, 304.1m live in USA and 106.7 m live in Mexico.

Mr. Jenkins continues: - “EFTA has reached trade deals with 38 countries, including Canada. But it requires a hard border with Sweden to enforce country-of-origin controls.” says Mr. Jenkins.

Those words do not do justice to the co-operative work that produces swift passages for trade between those two nations. Please read Dr. R North on the Norway-Sweden mutual co-operation arrangements.

PERCENTAGES OF UK TRADE: EU AND TH EWORLD.

Please remember that only 20% of UK GDP is exported.

Of that 20%of UK trade, you must deduct UK Entrepot trade of 7% of GDP leaving the 13% of UK GDP exported to the EU.

That 13%, amounts to only 37 % of UK exports, and that % has been dwindling for years. The growing UK export volumes to non EU markets now amount to 64% of UK exports and these are continuing to grow in % terms. Why on earth would anyone in their right mind seek to remain in a strait- jacket of an EU customs union designed for France and Germany in particular that would be detrimental to 64% plus of UK exports?

CONCLUSION.

We really hope that MP’s are now more that beginning to realize that the only exit route which will resolve UK-EU issues is the one herein proposed, namely :
- to adopt the UK/EEA/EFTA bespoke stepping stone route with special UK-EU bespoke changes: - The EEA/EFTA/BREXIT route.
