

A Wall of Silence and the Remainers campaign

Dear all,

I hope that you have had time to read about The House of Lords in respect of the threats of the majority there, to de-rail the Withdrawal Bill without choking.

I am very worried about the vast Remainer campaign in Leave voting constituencies. Highly trained and aggressive lieutenants bought with George Soros money will be door stepping in ever increasing numbers. The man in the street has neither the skill in argument nor the confidence, to resist this with words, and will be an easy prey to that coercive Remainer rhetoric. I therefore suggest a campaign called, WALL OF SILENCE.

Leavers should all as of now, keep a large card by their entrance doors. It should say. I VOTED LEAVE AND I STAND BY THAT, GO AWAY!

The instant that those on the doorstep identify themselves verbally or by flags/logos, then Leave voters should pick up and hold that card very visibly, WITHOUT UTTERING A SINGLE WORD, and then firmly close the door.

That way, those outside will have nowhere to go. Only if Leave voters attempt to argue the toss with them, will the Remainers try to gain traction.

Silence cannot be overcome. It has the added bonus of warding off the possibility of a scuffle (one of their favourite tools). Such action on the part of Leavers would be therefore self-protective, and also be of political impact. The cards need not be printed; the slogan writ large in marker pen will be perfectly adequate for the task.

Opinions would be appreciated.

G. Williams