

The rise again of UKIP

Letter to the Daily Telegraph 15 5 2018

SIR – As someone who voted with the majority for Britain to leave the EU, I naively, as it turns out, expected Parliament to respect that result, as the two main parties pledged in their manifestos at the election last year.

It seems now that what the majority of the people want and what the majority of MPs are now determined to get are two entirely different things.

If Brexit fails it will be because of an arrogant deceit by many MPs. This will make future manifestos not worth the paper they are written on. This is surely the right time for a new centre-Right party to be born. It will have nothing to lose and many millions of votes to gain.
