

The solution to the forthcoming inevitable EURO DEMISE comes down to completing an EU Nation State [United States of Europe without the UK] with one set of taxpayers responsible for the debts of the State and the subdivisions of it, and backing a single lifeboat fund for depositors into any bank in that super State. To that extent the UK's decision to leave the EU before those questions become urgent is entirely rational. Yet with this sword of Damocles hanging over the UK it is absurd for the UK Government and opposition to delay joining EFTA immediately and running from the pending EURO disaster. The Mrs May solution of more integration as a UK vassal state attached in orbit to the EU is financial madness as well.
